Master by inactivity and illiberality. Conscious that their Lord has committed his all to them on earth, they will be found worthy of the trust, or, at least, doing their utmost to be so. 6. The result has proved that Jesus knew what was in man when he reposed this confidence in his peoples love. The affection of the Church has not proved worthy of the trust--for that it could not do--but it has done far more than any other feeling would have done. It has induced greater activity and self-denial, and sustained greater burdens, than any other principle. It has given birth to a heroism which has encountered every danger, and endured patiently the cruellest tortures which persecutors could devise. Filled with love to Jesus, his feeblest disciples have stood the wrath of their foes as if girt about with omnipotence, and passed through the flames without dismay. It has given rise to generous self-sacrifice for the welfare of others, with which there is nothing in the history of the world to compare. Glowing with love to Him who became poor that he might make many rich, his followers have devoted their lives to toil and privation, to suffering and death, that the lamp of life might shine upon the benighted souls of men. The sentiment of Paul has been no uncommon thing, The love of Christ constraineth me. The names of a Brainerd, a Martyn, a Williams, a Moffat, and many others...
